One of the top challenges for many of today's job seekers is a lack of technical knowledge and abilities. The good news is...help is out there! Most of today's job applications are online and many company websites require you to have an email address to even apply! If you feel like you are not able to apply for jobs because you are not comfortable on a computer, please be aware that there are lots of free or low cost computer classes in our area just waiting for you to take advantage of! Below is a list of computer training providers in our service area as well as free websites that provide computer classes and tutorials:
